

Women of Peace Award

For all the time you've spent thinking, dreaming, planning and creating ways to make your world a better place to live. For all the times you thought you were just an everyday, ordinary person, but somehow you pushed beyond what you had been told you could accomplish. For all the times you have spoken up for what you believe in. For the financial risks you have taken. For the inner courage you manage to rely on even when you don't think you have any courage. For keeping a sense of humor, even when things looked bad. For bringing hope to us all because of your commitment.

The Women's Peacepower Foundation, Inc. Declares

Alexis Moore

To Be A Woman of Peace

Awarded: September 23, 2012

Diane McCabe Vaughan
Diane McCabe Vaughan, President